COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

A selectman has asked that I explain the status of the comprehensive plan that was approved at the 1965 annual meeting. After town meeting, the planning board made application to the Department of Economic Development for state and federal funds to pay for the comprehensive plan. The $3,125.00 that was raised at town meeting represents only one quarter of the total cost of the plan. The chairman of the planning board received a letter during the summer and another in the fall stating that federal approval would be made in a short while. About two weeks ago a news article appeared in the daily paper stating that the federal share of the cost had been approved. Shortly after that I got a call from the consulting firm that the funds for Bethel had been approved and he also stated that it would be about two weeks before official notification got through to the local level.

The planning division of the Department of Economic Development is a sort of middle man in the process of having the study or comprehensive plan made. The D. E. D. reviews the work of the consulting planning firm. It also handles the money of the town, state and federal governments. As the work is completed, the D. E. D. makes payments to the planning firm.

When I was talking with the representatives of the planning firm, he said that his company would meet with the planning board to gather preliminary information. The consulting firm is interested in getting basic data on the town and the data will be studied prior to the actual field work that will be done this spring and summer.

I hope to be able to comment on the status of the sewer study next week.

DIRECTORS LEARN OF GRANT—BUDGET FOR 1966 ANNOUNCED

At the regular meeting of the Directors of S. A. D. No. 44 Monday evening, Dexter M. Stowell, chairman, reported that the Bingham Estate Trustees would grant the District $400,000 as building aid for the new school, paid over a 20 year period with provision that the Engelhardt study recommendations be followed.

The recommended program outlined by the educational consultants could be housed in a building allowing an estimated gross area of 113,600 square feet. (The latest floor plan revisions submitted for discussion by the building committee is approximately 120,061 square feet.) The educational needs of 750 young people could adequately be fulfilled in this environment.

The study also covers the need of students to develop their bodies, and to prepare for "recreational skills" which will supplant the organized team sports after the student has completed school. This feature involves extensive preparation of out-of-door athletic areas. It is indicated that the directors support this project.

A breakdown of the estimated expenses as a result of the Engelhardt study shows:

Site	$1,600,000
Site development	15,000
Site development (inc. athletic fields)	75,000
Equipment	180,000
Architect's fee	80,000
Contingency	$1,850,000
	150,000
Initial cost of building	$1,100,000
	150,000

Total cost of project $2,250,000. Revised building plans were presented and discussed by Lester Bickford, chairman of the building committee. Changes were described. The Directors approved Steinman, Cain and White of New York City as consulting architects.

An application for a loan to the Maine School Building Authority was approved by the Directors for any amount needed in excess of a bank loan, although at the present time Districts may not borrow from the MSBA.

Short term borrowing for the operating expenses of the District through the Casso Bank. continued on Page Five
